An organic mineral and nutritional supplement, derived from ancient plants, containing fulvic acid and more than 70 minerals and trace elements, amino acids, amino sugars, peptic acids, nucleic acids and phytochemicals from pre-dinosaur era plants, preserved in a special type of South African brown coal.

Nature-invented mechanism to increase the bio-availability and bio-activity of nutrients, minerals, and vitamins, by incorporating them into its own chemical structure and delivering their mineral, nutritional and healing worth inside the living cells of our bodies, where it is optimally metabolized and utilized for nutrition and protection.

A powerful natural anti-oxidant and free radical's scavenger, known to recombine with both positively and negatively charged free radicals, rendering them harmless before they can damage our DNA and living cells.

An active detoxifier and heavy metals chelator, either transforming the harmful substances in our food into innocuous bio-active complexes or eliminating them as waste.

A powerful natural electrolyte, think Energade or Powerade without the colorants, flavorings and other chemical compounds.

Anti-viral, anti-bacterial and anti-inflammatory qualities, due to its phytochemical content A strong natural oxygenating agent, due to a large content of highly bio-available and bio-active, structural oxygen.

Anti-wrinkling and anti-ageing skin effects, and strengthening of connective tissue, due to its ability to transform vegetal silica into collagen.

Detox

When beginning to use fulvic acid for the first time some people (one in five in our experience) may experience mild effects of cleansing and detoxification. Signs of detoxification may include flu-like symptoms: mild headache, mild diarrhea (or constipation), mild joint aches, tiredness, etc. Such a detox reaction is typically only short-term, usually a few days to a week. It is a normal and even healthy reaction that may indicate healing. Do not discontinue using the product, you may reduce the dose until symptoms of detoxification disappear, and then build up the dose to the regular recommended level. 15% fulvic acid concentration, manufactured exclusively for Rapha using a unique process.
